

SAN FRANCISCO

Mission District

Culture

"What is the Mission?" you might ask. Well, the Mission is truly what you make it. There is an enormous amount of diverse culture to soak up when visiting this neighborhood. The mission is a melting pot of different ethnicities and cultures.

Hispanic culture is without a doubt very prominent in the Mission. The amount of delicious Mexican restaurants and taquerias available in the Mission can be a bit overwhelming because they're just all so good, so try them all! Indulge in Hispanic tradition and celebrate Dia De Los Muertos at the

Mission Art

The Mission is home to some of the Bay Area's greatest pieces of art. Some of the pieces can be found in galleries and others are painted illegally on brick walls, billboards, rooftops, and alleyways. Many of these pieces of graffiti go unseen by the common eye due to their location.

Don't be afraid to climb a fence and get a little dirty to find these hidden gems. These illegally painted masterpieces add a touch of color to the grey walls of the Mission.

Every scribble on a wall is more than art or vandalism. There is a person and a story behind each marking. Graffiti is urban hieroglyphics.

bring it up

Leave your mark.

Explore

The Mission is such an incredible diverse district allowing you access to explore multiple types of urban terrain. Mission Street being the heart of the Mission, consists of aged buildings. In addition, industrial buildings are beginning to sprout up around the Mission neighborhood. However one of the Mission's most unique landscapes is Dolores Park.

Dolores Park Offers a taste of nature to relieve one from the business of the urban environment. Hundreds of people can be found relaxing at Dolores Park 7 days a week. Food, drinks, games, and friends are all you need to have a great time at Dolores Park.

↓ soften these shapes